Presidents Corner:

As much as this pains me, this will probably be my last column. As many of you know, back in December, the company that I worked for decided that they had too many engineers and I was one of them. So for the last month I have been looking for new employment opportunities. After much gnashing of teeth we have decided to accept an offer in Tallassee Alabama.

We had two big issues, one is the culture of the “Deep” South and the other was finding a place to live. Wherever we went, we ran into displaced Northerners, and all were very positive about the area and supportive of moving down there.

The other big issue is that Janet wants a new house (something we have never had) and she wants at least a few neighbors. Finding something that we can afford, that we both like, and can allow me to practice my Ham Radio hobby has not been easy. As many of you know, almost all of the newer developments have rules against antennas and transmitting radio signals. To our amazement, one new development, located very close to work, has decided to work with us and make adjustments in their rules. I won’t be allowed to put up a big tower and beam, but I should be allowed 2 antennas, both verticals. The details aren’t finalized and things can still fall apart but we are very hopeful.

Thinking about this, I think that the opinion about Amateur Radio is starting to change, at least in the South. With Katrina and the publicity about Amateur Radio operators helping out in disasters, people are seeing a reason to at least tolerate our unsightly antennas and us. I am hoping that this may actually be a pattern that will flow across the country.

I think it also helps to confront the issue up front. It is a lot easier to negotiate before the deal is finalized than it is afterwards.

I hope to see everyone at the breakfast and at the February meeting.

Tubs of Tubes

by Dan Romanchik, KB6NU'

The other day I got a call from a guy whose website I'm working on. He says he's calling from the Ann Arbor Reuse Center and that they have two tubs full of vacuum tubes there. He asked, "Do you know anyone who might want them"?

"How much are they asking for them"? I reply.

"Ten cents a piece."

"How many are there"?

"I'd guess about two hundred."

"Well, tell them I'll give him 20 bucks for all of them."

He tells them that I'll give them $20 for the lot. I hear some mumbling. He comes back on the line and says they're negotiating. After a minute or two, he says, "OK. You got them. How do I get to your house"?

I gave him directions, and in about 15 minutes, he pulls up to my house, gets out, opens the hatch, and pulls out two plastic tubs and a cardboard box with vacuum tubes in them. I can tell he was way off in his estimate. There must be at least 400 tubes in all.

There's nothing really exotic--most of them seem to have been taken out of old TV sets--but I did find a couple of 6J6s. These are the tubes used for the single-tube transmitter I have been thinking about building (see http://wv7g.home.mindspring.com/jones_6j6.html for more info). In one of the tubs, there was even a socket for the 6J6.

There are also a bunch of 6KS7s. According to the RCA tube manual, these tubes were often used as RF or IF amplifiers. That sounds like the beginning of a receiver project, doesn't it? In fact, 6SK7s were used in the receiver section of the ParaSet (<http://www.mines.uidaho.edu/~glowbugs/paraset.htm>), a "spy radio" used during WWII.

And, of course, there are a bunch of rectifiers to make a power supply. Now, all I have to find some cheap transformers. Anyone know a good source for them?

When he's not wondering what he's going to do with more than 400 vacuum tubes, KB6NU works CW and PSK on the HF bands and blogs about ham radio at www.kb6nu.com. You can reach him by e-mail at cwgeek@kb6nu.com.

[[NOTE: A photo of one of the tubs can be had off my website at <http://kb6nu.com/wp-content/uploads/2007/12/tuboftubes>

Brain Teaser: In Don's (WA4FRJ) absence I (editor) will inject my best guess at the answer to the number of gifts received during the twelve days of Christmas. I was not very mathematical or scientific in my approach but the answer I arrived at is 364 gifts. Don will either confirm or refute that answer when he returns from sunny Florida. I spoke with Don today (1/24/08) and he and Helen are doing well and enjoying their stay in FL. In fact, it almost sounded like they might like to stay there – at least for an extended period of time.
